TRUE WORSHIP

Worship is man's greatest occupation. It has always been a matter of divine stipulation. It calls for the deepest humility in the human heart. It is not performance-oriented. God does not applaud the sensational production of human cleverness. But, contrite, submissive worship rises to Him "as a sweet smelling savor."

While not every act of Christian worship is regulated to the corporate assembly, yet the worship assembly of God's people is the major impetus of a dynamic Christian life. To neglect it is to die. What happens when we worship?

WE CONGREGATE. We meet in Jesus' name. We gather! We come together to share faith! We have all things in common. We are one! The assembly itself is an open demonstration that Jesus lives.

WE CELEBRATE. We do things together. It is more than attitude; it is action! Hearts on fire with thanksgiving are eager to praise God. It is not a funeral dirge for one who is dead, but a living celebration of the living Christ. We should avoid deadness, routine, and extreme formality on the one hand, and spontaneous exhibition of the other.

WE COMMEMORATE. We remember! Our minds are turned backwards as we focus on the cross. The sacred supper is a time to reflect upon the body of Christ offered and His blood shed. Grace is at the heart of worship.

WE COMMUNICATE. Worship is communication with God and with each other. In prayers, hearts communicate with God. Our singing not only praises God, but communicates spiritual truths to each other. Preaching stamps God's truth upon human hearts.

WE CONTEMPLATE. In the presence of God, we stand in awe. May we never lose the sense of wonder in worship! To ponder! To meditate! To appreciate! To probe!

Never allow your worship to become trite nor commonplace. Vibrant worship is the key to a growing spiritual life.
